Where should I advertise my job openings?

Why AutoJobPros.com may be the best answer for your business

Over the past 20 years, the explosion of online advertising options has opened new opportunities for businesses to promote themselves, expand their brands, and recruit new team members.

In the automotive space, where employee turnover is at an all-time high, sorting through all the options available has become a herculean task. AutoJobPros.com is one option, but WHY should that be your best option? Here are three reasons...

First and foremost, AutoJobPros.com is dedicated 100% to our industry. The ONLY jobs offered and the ONLY resumes accepted are for the automotive industry. We believe that by dedicating our efforts to the industry, we are better able to attract professional, industry-dedicated employees who are more likely to meet employers' needs AND stay in their new roles. These folks know the industry, are committed to it, like it, and, unlike the random job candidate with no industry experience, are dedicated to it. They WANT jobs in this sector, and they want to KEEP jobs in this industry.

Second, AutoJobPros.com provides a cost-effective, fixed price model where you know up front exactly what you're paying and what you're paying for. There are no hidden costs, upcharges by "click" or by "application". You pay a fixed amount from one of three plans, where you select the frequency of your ads, the duration of your ads, and the term of your contract period. Or, if our plans don't exactly fit your needs, we'll design a custom program that you define.

Finally, we support the industry and the people who are your customers and employees. We believe that most people in America share a common set of values. To that end, we support non-political conservative non-profit groups by contributing a percentage of our earnings to groups such as Tunnels to Towers, Wounded Warriors, and Turning Point USA.

Advertising on AutoJobPros.com not only provides you with a conduit to potential employees who are dedicated auto industry professionals, but it also supports the automotive industry and the American way of life.
